

James Burrow, Snr Infrastructure Engineer with SIRE Technology*

SIRE expands its technical team with its latest appointment, as business continues to flourish.

SIRE, a leader in the provision of cloud based business continuity services, has appointed James Burrows. In his capacity as Senior Infrastructure Engineer he will be key to providing high quality technical support for both existing and new customers, especially those with complex migration projects.

Russell Cook, SIRE MD, said; "We are delighted that not only has James joined our team bringing with him his considerable experience, but also that our business is continuing to grow and provide opportunities for local employment. This is the third new appointment in the last six months."

Prior to joining SIRE, Burrows spent over nine years with HP in a similar project implementation role. Commenting on his move to SIRE, he said; "The time was right for a change and SIRE seemed to offer me the opportunity to use my technical knowledge but being a smaller organisation there is also scope for me to make a real contribution to the overall business." In addition to his a degree in Business Information Systems from Portsmouth University, James also holds a number of industry recognised Microsoft qualifications.

Background

With over twenty years experience, SIRE has established itself as one of the leading providers of innovative systems and processes, that make a real difference to the organisations it works with. It allows these companies to focus on their core activity whilst SIRE manages the infrastructure on which it is based. By using a combination of cloud computing technique and virtualisation, SIRE is able to provide organisations with a reliable, flexible and financially viable IT infrastructure coupled with a robust Business Continuity Plan.
